

NEWCON supports T-Mobile in the course of further network expansion and modernization of the network

Vienna, Austria, (12 December 2012) - Mobile operator T-Mobile Austria has implemented a large investment program, enabling its customers to ensure an even better experience with the services of T-Mobile. As part of the promotion of network extensions and modernization of the network, the customer is at the center. Objective of this program was to provide customers a superior mobile voice and data network to offer innovative services respectively to provide for the future base, in order to differentiate themselves from the competition and increasing its market share. A very important challenge in this program was to ensure the complex interplay between "Mobile Network (OSS)" and it involved many other IT components (BSS) qualitatively during the migration phase. After T-Mobile has been around for years on the expertise of NEWCON especially in the area of "Interconnect Billing" and "Revenue Assurance", NEWCON was required in this strategic project to ensure quality during the "upgrade" phase and promptly implement new requirements. By NEWCON "revenue assurance" module, for example, could all existing and emerging technical scenarios are detected promptly and, if necessary, to striking instant analysis cases or deviant behavior are created and initiate corrective action immediately in a row. Thus, the "revenue assurance" module was in the course of this program a central control element between the networks and involved IT components. By using this technology, T-Mobile run a highly complex program with the highest quality and avoided to customers and interconnection partners possible effects due to the changeover work entirely.

NEWCON has, on its own technology and innovations, long been based successful supplier of "Interconnect-Billing/SMS-Interworking- & Revenue Assurance Systems" at T-Mobile Austria.

Dipl. Ing. Andreas Oppel, MBA (Senior Manager Interconnection & Regulatory Affairs, T-Mobile Austria) said:

"With the expanded use of the T-Mobile pre-existing "Interconnection Billing" and "Revenue Assurance" solutions NEWCON could once again put the flexible approach to projects, and the versatile and easy usability of the technical expertise of NEWCON prove. NEWCON differentiates itself from its traditional competitors, in essence, that high level of technical and business management-knowhow is available across the entire value chain of a telecommunications provider. Their consulting and product strategy is focused on reliable solutions that are found to meet the requirements of T-Mobile. "

Dipl. Ing. Andreas Besser, NEWCON Delivery Manager concludes: „This program gave us the opportunity to once again make our consulting and product knowhow transparent. After T-Mobiles Finance Department has already top marked NEWCONs „Revenue Assurance“ Module back in 2011, this time we were able to demonstrate our expertise in the core area of a Telco to prove, namely the interaction between network and IT components. Ultimately, these components are affecting T-Mobiles' customer and provide the basis for the products and services offered to the customers. “
